OPENING REMARKS

Youth Development is essential to helping the youth of South Africa succeed in life. There are far more prospective workers than there are jobs available for them, and many youth are not able to afford to study further and become more specialised. This is where youth development programmes come in.

Offering young people work readiness programmes, opportunities to advance their education and make a difference in their communities are just some of the ways that youth development can change South Africa for the better.

Positive youth development is a framework that guides communities in the way they organize services, opportunities, and supports so that young people can develop to their full potential. Positive youth development is not just another program.

Communities that adopt a youth development approach emphasize these principles:

- ✓ Focus on strengths and positive outcomes. Rather than taking a deficit-based approach, communities intentionally help young people build on their strengths and develop the competencies, values, and connections they need for life and work.
- ✓ Community involvement and collaboration. Positive youth development includes but reaches beyond programs; it promotes organizational change and collaboration for community change. All sectors have a role to play in making the community a great place to grow up.
- ✓ Long-term commitment. Communities provide the ongoing, developmentally appropriate support young people need over the first 20 years of their lives.
- ✓ Youth voice and engagement. Youth are valued partners who have meaningful, decision-making roles in programs and communities.
- ✓ Strategies that involve all youth. Communities support and engage all youth rather than focusing solely on "high-risk" or "gifted" youth. Communities do, however, recognize the need to identify and respond to specific problems faced by some youth (such as violence or premature parenthood).

However, it has been reliably observed that the support of the youth is fragmented generally and particularly in Tembisa.

In view of the above said, Get Informed Youth Development Centre intends to implement holistic youth empowerment and capacity building programmes.

The primary objectives of the programmes is to Skill and link Unemployed Youth with Economic opportunities with emphasis on the following:

VISION

“To have an Informed Youth, that is Skilled, Independent and has Access to Economic Opportunities”

MISSION

“To provide Youth with Relevant Information and Skills to be Economical Active”
